GIRL AND FARMER BOY FACED WITH MURDER CHARGES

19-YEAR-OLD MISS HELD AS INSTIGATOR OF BRUTAL CRIME.

Youth Spends Time on Oiled Locks; Sweetheart Calls for Cigars.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS
Roxana, Ill.—Phenix McKinney, the pretty 19-year-old sweethearts of Emil Zupke, today is charged by Sheriff George Bridgeman with being the instigator of a secret plot that resulted in the killing of Cora May Raber.

By her, according to the sheriff, the young country girl has admitted that she knew her boyfriend for Zupke's affection was to "do done away with."

Zupke and the girl were arrested on Tuesday night, after he had broken down and admitted that he had choked Miss Raber to death and his sweetheart had been secretly informed of this sin, with whom when the crime was committed.

Zupke related how he choked Miss Raber, who was soon to have become a mother, after she had refused to release him from a promise to marry her so that he could wed Miss McKinney. Zupke and his youthful sweetheart have been held since.

The girl, half-hysterical and composed, talked freely, interrupting her story of the slaying with demands for clemency. Zupke, a farmer youth who was turned off his father's farm because of his "wild ways," is as composed as ever. Invariably, he spends much of his time brushing back his oily locks.

Showed the sheet that the slain woman had purchased, intending to wear them to her wedding with Zupke the night he killed her, he declared: "They don't mean anything to me. When do we eat?"

G. A. R. COMES TO MICHIGAN

BULLETIN
Dr. Louis Arensberg of Unton, Pa., today was elected commander in chief of the Grand Army of the Republic by the encampment in session here.

Boston—Grand Rapids, Mich., was selected as next year's meeting place at the 58th annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic here today.

The Grand Army had as the major part of its business program the election of a new commander-in-chief and vice-chairs.

Other nominees for the high offices yesterday were E. L. Hawley, Sacramento, Cal.; Dr. Louis Arensberg, Unton, Pa., and John E. Inman, Springfield, Ill.

LIBERTY BOND THEFTS BARED

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS

Putnam, Conn.—The manner in which G. Harold Gilpatrick, state treasurer, was able to embezzle $262,000 from the First National Bank of Putnam, of which he was cashier, was revealed today.

Many people took liberty bonds in the bank and asked for Gilpatrick himself to take them over, so great was their confidence in him.

Gilpatrick, in most instances, diverted the securities to his own account.

The bank is closed and in charge of a receiver. Gilpatrick is in a hospital as a result of shooting himself.

UNCOVER POSSIBLE MURDER MYSTERY

Waukesha—With little to guide them beyond the laundry mark "A. G." in the neck band of a shirt and the fact that the clothing was contained in a cement bag of the "Keene" brand, authorities today are seeking to make progress in the unraveling of the mystery of the slaying and the finding of a man's blood-soaked garments on a dump heap. That the wearer of the clothing may have been murdered by a blow on the head, while seated in an automobile is the theory of the police.

BULLETTIN
JANESVILLE—Adam Karsner, 68, was instantly killed in a fall from a lead of hay.

Yes; We Have No Pianos

That is the song that Miss Pauline Robinson is singing since she advertised her player piano for sale in the classified columns of the Gazette.

She ran her ad three days last week and sold her piano very easily. You can see that it is play for the Gazette ads to sell pianos.

You can also see that spending a few cents frequently brings in a few hundred dollars.

If YOU want to sell pianos or pool tables, or picnics, or picnics, or pianos or picnics—

Just call 2500 and ask for an ad-taker.

Not far from Janesville on the river road going toward Beloit is the little frame building where Francis William, founder of the W. G. T. SOUND CANDIDATES ON "T. B." ISSUE

Ask Political Candidates on Attitude on Several Agricultural Issues.

Agricultural leaders in Rock county are sounding out the sentiment of political candidates, especially those running for the state legislature, on their attitude toward legislation relating to bovine tuberculosis.

Livestock breeders are not satisfied with the limited program allowed when the present administration kept the amount to pay for reactor cattle at $100,000. They demand an increase, towards a larger contribution in the Wisconsin program to eradicate bovine tuberculosis.

Livestock breeders are not satisfied with the limited program allowed when the present administration kept the amount to pay for reactor cattle at $100,000. They demand an increase, towards a larger contribution in the Wisconsin program to eradicate bovine tuberculosis.

George Blanchard, Edgerton, in response to a letter, is the first of the local candidates to come forth with an expression. Blanchard declared himself in favor of an adequate appropriation to meet the situation as a general protective measure. Legislatives have decided mainly for the livestock industry, which is of great importance in Wisconsin, but also for the health of the people.

Views will be obtained from other candidates on this and other pending farm questions.

RIVERSIDE PARK ATTRACTS 2,000

Second Benefit for Public Golf Course Proves Another Success.

Twenty-two hundred dance tickets were sold at the second public dance of the season at the pavilion in Riverside park Wednesday night under auspices of the municipal golf club to provide funds for the upkeep of the public links. A crowd of more than 2,000 attended. The six-piece orchestra was well received.

Dancing continued to midnight. The band probably will be held two weeks.

Cold weather kept attendance at the picnic concert of the high school down to small numbers. Ralph G. Jacobs, bandmaster, however, gave an extra concert. The program was excellent. The playing of the 62 young musicians received much praise from the audience. The orchestra expressed itself deeply grateful to the bandmaster and the players.

Those in charge of the ticket sales were Dr. L. A. Jones, ranked by Bert Anderson, Captain of the band, Mr. George Gilliland, Director, McLaughlin, bat, charge of the cloak room and Ambrose J. Olsen of the refreshment stand.

George Gilliland, general chairman, issued a statement, thanking people who provided cars for transporting the band to and from the grounds.

Training School for Nurses Will Open Sept. 1st

Mercy hospital training school for nurses will open Sept. 1st. It will be opened Thursday by Miss Margaret Healy, now superintendent of nurses. Miss Healy comes here from Mercy hospital, Chicago, taking the place of Sister Mary Vincent, who is taking a course at Mayo Clinic, Rochester.

Mrs. Nedra Boyle, Rockbridge, recently graduated and is now on private duty. Miss Mina Aragon Stoughton has completed her course and is now night superintendent of nurses at the hospital.

Thirty-four nurses are taking the three year training course, and 16 applicants for admission in the fall have been accepted. Miss Ursula is anxious to obtain more Janeville girls in the class. Eight or nine more girls will complete their training course within the next few months and the hospital can accommodate a number more.

Kiwanis Talks Convention Plans

Janesville Kiwanis club spent most of its Thursday evening in a meeting discussing the Lathrop convention and making plans to live up to its slogan, "Janesville, the home of hospitality," when they entertain here next August.

Harry Harrard, Fred Burling and Roger Cunningham led the discussion. The board of directors will appoint a committee on convention plans within the next 10 days.

Fred will be in charge of arrangements for transportation for the playground picnic next Thursday at Riverview park.

WATER PUMPAGE IS 20 PCT. LESS THAN
SUMMER OF 1923

Records of the city water department show a 20 per cent reduction in water consumption in Janesville for this summer, as compared to last, the decrease being due largely to the continuous rainfall of the past two months. This has been so much rain that few if any people have had to resort to the hose to keep their lawns and gardens green.

The 1923 record is unusual when compared with the figures for other hot, dry summers, when sprinkling was common for two months. In June of 1923 the water pumping in Janesville was 47,500,000 gallons, while last month is claimed to be 37,000,000 gallons.

Last year the June record was 55,500,000; July, 60,000,000; and August, 60,000,000.

Pumpage for the first five months of this year was: January, 52,160,000; February, 49,000,000; March, 52,500,000; April, 48,500,000; and May, 48,500,000.

MISTRESS WILDING:

A ROMANCE, BY RAFAEL SABATINI.

(Author of "Sorrowsong," "Captain Blood," "Fortune's Fool," etc.) Wentworth's hand touched Wilding on the shoulder. He was standing with head slightly bowed, his brows knit in thought. He looked round at the touch, sighed and smiled.

Belmont held the coat for his master, who stepped into it, and flung a Wilding what was intended for a consolatory sop. "It is fortune de guerre, Mistake! Wilding. I am desolate; but it is fortune of the world."

"May it be less fortunate for your lordship, then?" said Wilding dryly, and was on the point of turning, when Ruth's voice came in a loud cry to startle him and to quicken his pulse.

"My lord!" It was a cry of utter anguish.

Feverish, clutching his gold-laced coat comfortably to his figure, he looked at her. "Madame?" said he.

But she had nothing to say. She stood, deathly white, slightly bent forward, one hand wringing the other, her eyes almost wild, her bosom heaving frantically.

"Hum," said Belmont, and he loosened and unbuttoned the belt from his head. He shivered slightly and looked at Wentworth. "Finis," said he.

The word and the look snapped the trammels that bound Ruth's speech.

"Five minutes, my lord!" she cried imploringly. "Give him five minutes, and let me go!"

Wilding, deeply shaken, trembled now as he awaited Feverish's reply.

The Frenchman seemed to waver. "Bien," he began, spreading his hands. And in that moment a shot rang out in the night and started the whole house. Feverish threw back his head, the signs of yielding left his face. "Ho!" he cried. "They are arrive!" He snatched his whip from his lacquered hands, dashed it, and turned again to instant to the mirror to adjust the great curve. Quick! Wentworth was in the room now. Maha! Mistake! Wilding leaped at once to his regiments! He faced about and took the sword his valet proffered. "An revels, messieurs! See virtue, machine!" And, clutching his sword belt as he went, he swept out, leaving the door wide open. Belmont following. Wentworth shouting and the guards pressing after.

"Come, sir," said the captain in a subdued voice, his eyes avoiding Ruth's face.

"I am ready," answered Wilding firmly, and he turned to glance at his wife.

She was heading towards him, her hands held out, such a look on her face as almost drove him mad with despair, reading it as he did. He made his sound leap in his throat before he found words.

"Give me one minute, sir—one minute," he begged Wentworth. "I ask no more than that."

Wentworth was a gentleman and not a scoundrel. But he was a soldier and had received his orders. He hesitated between the instincts of the two conditions. And what time he did so there came a clatter of hoofs without to resolve him. It was Feverish.

"You shall have your minute, sir—one minute. I dare not give you, as you can see."

"From my heart, I thank you," answered Mr. Wilding, and from the gratitude of his tone you might have inferred that it was his life.

Wentworth had recorded him.

The captain, however, turned aside to address his men: "Two of you outside, guard that window," he ordered. "The rest of you, in the passage. Beatin' their!"

"Take your precautions, by all means, sir," said Wilding; "but give your full honour I shall attend no escape."

Wentworth nodded without replying. His eye lighted on Blake—who had been seemingly forgotten in the confusion—and on Richard. A kindness for the man who met his end so unluckily, a respect for so worthy an enemy, actuated the two.

"You had better take yourself off, Sir Rowland," said he. "And you, Westmoreland—you can wait in the passage with my men."

They obeyed him promptly enough, but when outside Sir Rowland made bold to remind the captain that he was failing in his duty, and that he must remain and advise under the General of this army, Wentworth bade him go to the devil, and so was rid of him.

Alone, inside that low-ceilinged chamber, stood Ruth and Wilding face to face. He advanced towards her, and with quivering shoulders drew himself into his arms. She nestled close to him, to which she was at once—dreadful as it should have its root in pity. He patted her shoulder soothingly.

"Nay, nay, little child," he whispered in her ear. "Never weep for me that have not a tear for myself. What better regret of the difficult folly can meet?"

"You cold dame who clings closer, her hands locked about his neck, her slender body slunk by her silent weeping. "Don't pity me," he besought her. "I am content if I should be so. It is the aman I

TODAY'S RECIPES

Eggs with Mushrooms — Select mushrooms of ordinary size. Peculiar them in two tablespoons of melted butter. Cover closely and cook over a moderate fire until the mushrooms are tender. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, take out with a fork and lay them on a hot dish. Pour into the butter and mushrooms flavor six well beaten eggs and a gill of cream. Stir until eggs are thickened. Add half a teaspoon of salt, a dash of paprika, and serve with the mushrooms.

Rice Casserole—Put boiled rice firmly into a baking dish, making it as much like a crust as thick thick as possible; fill with ham stew, cover with rice, and bake from one-half to three-quarters of an hour. The rice covers the meat and the ham flavor is in a plate of the right size and then mashed over the stew. A little of the fluid of the stew or some melted butter may be put over to keep the rice from drying up while it is baking.

Cheese Salad Dressing—One-fourth pound grated cheese, one teaspoon catsup, one-half teaspoon sugar, one-half teaspoon of English mustard (dry). Mix well and add four teaspoons of vinegar or two tablespoons more of olive oil. This is a good dressing for fish, potato or green salad.

Jellied Beef Bouillon—Four pounds of beef, two pounds knuckle bone, four quarts cold water, one cup dried carrots, two sliced onions, one-half cup celery, one bay leaf, a few peppercorns, two sprigs parsley, one-half cup tomato soup, one teaspoon salt. Cut the meat in cubes and brown half of it in a small skillet over the range. Add the soup water and the raw meat, and the cubed beef. Cover with the water and let stand one hour, then bring to the simmering point slowly. Put in the vegetables and seasonings and simmer slowly, covered, for five hours. (A pressure cooker is invaluable for the process.) Strain and add the meat juice, the fat and add the thick tomato and salt, using more than is called for if necessary. Catsup may replace the puréed tomatoes. Simmer 15 minutes, chill, serve in bouillon cups, breaking slightly with a fork to get the broken, crystal-like pieces. Cubbage and Potato—One-half cup sliced carrots, one-half cup beans, one-half cup sliced onions, one-half cup salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, dash of celery salt, one-half chopped onion or onion juice, two tablespoons vinegar, four tablespoons salad oil, one onion. Put all dry ingredients together and mix thoroughly. Sift in vinegar, then oil. Arrange on plates with strips of pineapple.

KITCHEN HELP!

If you cover your cook books with white oilcloth they may be easily cleaned with a damp cloth when soiled. A regulation book cloth serves the same purpose, but it is likely to pull corners out of the corners of your book covers or which you copy. And a set of iron book ends—chamfered white for looks and cast in cleaning—make a neat place to keep the books.

YOUR BABY and MINE

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Mrs. Eldred is happy to advise all mothers how to care for their children of any age, or on any subject which does not belong in the field of the doctor.

HIGH COW'S MILK

Many babies cannot digest cream easily. They take on weight rapidly on Jersey milk, or the top milk of ordinary cows, and on the first bottle will vomit often; they show signs of indigestion and the mother is unable to realize what has caused it.

Babies who take on flesh at the rate of 16 ounces or more a week are being fed too often, or too rich a milk; or too much at a time. This is a larger gain than is consistent with the baby's needs. In addition the child shows a tendency to loose bowels and many movements daily; one may infer that the milk is too heavy with cream.

The average milk of about 4 percent cream yields more babies than the rich milk.

When one feels that the baby is not digesting its food properly it is a good idea to test its digestibility by taste slowly."

without too much cream. Skin off one-half of the cream and bottle with the other milk. If the indigestion stops, one can be fairly certain that this has been causing the trouble. If the baby has to be put on pure skimmed milk or buttermilk until he gets over his trouble. Later the mother can put the cream back into the formula one teaspoonful at a time. If the baby is still troubled where indigestion or abnormal symptoms start again, She can keep the cream just below this point and the baby will have the benefit of exactly the amount of cream he is able to take care of without indigestion.

It is well when a baby has trouble digesting its milk, from any cause, to reduce the formula one-half and replace the other half with boiled water. This gives the digestion a chance to recover rapidly, which it cannot do if the child is fed its regular diet. In this case, however, it gradually and watch the baby for signs of any return of the trouble. It pays to "make haste slowly."

The average milk of about 4 percent cream yields more babies than the rich milk.

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON.
Letters May Be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette.

ALONE AT 70
Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am 70 and have four children and several grandchildren, but none of them have time to see me. I am very lonesome and don't know what to do.

MRS. ALONE AT 70
One is never too old to enter herself to people through service. If you are neglected by your husband, it is quite probable that at your age you have not a great deal of strength, but I believe it would be worth your effort to make small quantities of jelly and take a tumbler into a neighbor; talk to little children and help them cut pictures from magazines; when there is sickness, especially with the young, call for the people about you, and I think you will find them responsive.

You were very wise in refusing to marry the boy, because both of you are too young to consider such a relationship. He has proved that his love was not dependable since he got angry so easily and turned his attentions in another direction. Let him go and wait until some one else comes along for you to love.

ALONE AT 70
I asked me to marry him and go to California, but I refused. Should have refused as long as I love him so much. He got angry and now he goes with another girl. How can I win back his love?
